

Last week I was in Slovenia with Erasmus+ project "Let's talk about soil". There was a group of six students from our school together with four teachers.

We all stayed with Slovenian families. I stayed with a four people family, a mother, a father and two brothers.

The familie's attitude was very positive. They were very kind to me, and helped me whenever I needed help. We had meals together, I attended classes with one of the boys Jan, and I met a lot of people from different countries eg; Spain, Slovenia, the Netherlands and Italy. We played sports together, we went to the cinema, and we talked a lot in the evenings. Every night we played chess or watched football matches. I also visited the Old Castle in Celje with the whole family on Friday afternoon. I saw a ski slope near Celje and we went shopping together in the biggest shopping mall in Celje- I spent half of my money there. We spoke English all the time, and I didn't have problems with communication. I felt at home with this family.

Summing up : It was a great time for me because I met a lot of fantastic people. I saw some breathtaking views of the Alps, and did a lot of sightseeing. I learnt new facts about soil too. The whole Erasmus+ meeting was very well organised and personally I think everybody should take part in it.
